PENNSYLVANIA JUDGE OF THE SUPERIOR COURT

JOB DESCRIPTION

The Superior Court is one of Pennsylvania's two statewide intermediate appellate courts. This court, established in 1895, reviews most of the civil and criminal cases that are appealed from the Courts of Common Pleas in the Commonwealth's 67 counties. The Superior Court consists of 15 judges. The president judge is elected to a five-year term by his/ her colleagues. A large number of appeals flow to the Superior Court from the trial courts. Generally, appeals are heard by panels of three judges sitting in Philadelphia, Harrisburg, or Pittsburgh. The court often is the final arbiter of legal disputes. Although the Supreme Court may grant a petition for review of a Superior Court decision, most petitions are denied, and the ruling of the Superior Court stands.

A. The Superior Court is one of two intermediate appellate courts in PA. The Superior Court is responsible for appeals in criminal and most civil cases from the Courts of Common Pleas. This court is also responsible for appeals involving children and families. When a matter is appealed to the Superior Court, it is the role of the judges assigned to the case to review the record from the lower court along with the issue or issues on appeal. Each case has opposing positions/parties. Each case should be fairly and impartially evaluated by the judges based on the specific facts, law and if applicable, the constitution. It is not the role of the court or any judge to legislate from the bench.

ANN MARIE WHEATCRAFT

COUNTY: Chester

A. I have been employing a fair and impartial process in handling cases in my courtroom since taking the bench in 2012. I will continue to treat all with respect and dignity, considering evidence presented, arguments of parties, and the applicable law in deciding cases. On Superior Court, three-judge panels collaborate on cases, determining the appropriate law and applying it to the facts at issue. As the President Judge in my county, I collaborate with county officials and all department heads to ensure our courts are efficient and fair for citizens. Having been an advocate and a litigator for 12 years prior to taking the bench, I understand the role of the parties and am respectful of each party fulfilling their role in our justice system.

PENNSYLVANIA JUDGE OF THE COMMONWEALTH COURT

JOB DESCRIPTION

The Commonwealth Court is one of Pennsylvania's two statewide intermediate appellate courts. This court, established in 1968, is unlike any other state court in the nation. Its jurisdiction generally is limited to legal matters involving state and local government and regulatory agencies. Litigation typically focuses on subjects such as banking, insurance, utility regulation, and laws affecting taxation, land use, elections, labor practices, and workers compensation. The Commonwealth Court also acts as a court of original jurisdiction, or a trial court, when lawsuits are filed by or against the Commonwealth. The Commonwealth Court is made up of nine judges. The president judge is elected to a five-year term by his/her colleagues. Generally, appeals are heard by panels of three judges sitting in Philadelphia, Harrisburg, or Pittsburgh.

Term: 10 years
Base Salary: $247,188
Vote for ONE.

DEMOCRAT

STELLA TSAI

OCCUPATION: Judge, Court of Common Pleas
EDUCATION: B.A. - Pennsylvania State University J.D. - University of Pennsylvania
QUALIFICATIONS: My 35 plus years of experience in law and the judiciary have equipped me with the skills and insights necessary to address the complex social, economic, and governmental issues facing our Commonwealth.

Q. What process would you follow to be fair and impartial in reviewing and evaluating opposing positions in evaluating a case?
 A. My job requires me to act impartially and to treat all parties with respect. I want all parties to feel that they are on a level playing field. I do my best to put the parties at ease and allow them to have a free and fair opportunity to present their case, including language access, and that parties receive what they recognize to be due process under the law.

REPUBLICAN

MATT WOLFORD
COUNTY: Erie
OCCUPATION: Attorney
EDUCATION: Undergraduate degree: Penn State; Juris Doctorate degree: Temple University School of Law
QUALIFICATIONS: 38 years of relevant experience in government and private sectors, including Commonwealth Court hearings and appeals; ranked “Highly Recommended” by the PA Bar Association; see website for additional details.

Q. What process would you follow to be fair and impartial in reviewing and evaluating opposing positions in evaluating a case?
 For this response, I assume that the Commonwealth Court is acting in its capacity as an appellate court. In my view, appellate courts should be “hot” courts, meaning that prior to oral argument, judges should become versed in the legal arguments presented. This requires reading the opening, response, and reply briefs; and, to the extent indicated by the arguments, reviewing portions of the reproduced record. Timely preparation allows judges to take advantage of the opportunity to ask unbiased, intelligent questions at oral argument. During oral argument, judges should treat all counsel with dignity and respect; and should be mindful of the extraordinary expenditure of time, effort, and resources required to appear before the Court.

JOSH PRINCE
COUNTY: Berks
OCCUPATION: Attorney
EDUCATION: Juris Doctorate
QUALIFICATIONS: I’ve spent my career defending our civil rights in the state and federal courts. Q. What process would you follow to be fair and impartial in reviewing and evaluating opposing positions in evaluating a case?

 A. Fairness starts with listening. I would approach each case with an open mind, carefully reviewing the facts, applicable law, and arguments from all parties. I believe in applying the Constitution and laws as written—not based on personal opinion, favors, or political pressure. The courtroom must be an approachable place where everyone knows justice will be served impartially. Behind every legal matter are real people and communities, and I take that responsibility seriously.

WHAT'S IN A NAME? OUR HISTORY!

The Wilkes-Barre League of Women Voters was established in 1944. The League of Women Voters of the United States was founded in 1920 — six months before the 19th amendment to the U.S. Constitution was ratified.

This amendment gave women the right to full voting rights after a 72-year hard-fought struggle.

The amendment was ratified on August 26, 1920. On November 2 of that year, more than eight million women across the United States voted in elections for the first time. The League of Women Voters was created to help newly enfranchised women learn how to register to vote, how to vote, how to learn about their candidates, and how to learn about the workings of their governments.

The League of Women Voters is nonexclusionary – all are welcome to join and participate in our programs.

Our name honors our rich history and those women who paved the way for all of us by working tirelessly to gain the right for disenfranchised women to vote so many years ago.

LWWBA DEMOCRACY 101

Presenting Democracy 101, an ongoing series of brief articles regarding government and elections, written by Board Member Dr. Thomas Baldino, Professor Emeritus of Political Science, Wilkes University. Please visit our website for the latest additions!

Primary Elections

What are Primaries, and Why Should I Vote In Them?

In Pennsylvania, Primary Elections occur every year in late May, except in presidential election years, when the primary moves to late April. Each party holds its own primary to determine who will represent it in the November General Election. Thus, primary elections are the first step in deciding who will run the government. Although many people only think about the primaries in presidential elections, they are also important in off-year elections, when Senate and Congressional seats are up for grabs, as well as state and local seats. Moreover, ballot measures, which allow voters to decide issues directly, are often decided in primary elections.

What is a Closed Primary?

In Pennsylvania, we have closed primary elections, meaning that only members of a given party may vote in that party's primary: for example, only registered Republicans may vote in the Republican primary, and only registered Libertarians, in the Libertarian primary. As a result, voters registered as "Independent" cannot vote in a primary unless there is a question or measure on that ballot.

In contrast, there are states with open primaries, which come in several kinds. In one type, a registered voter may decide which primary to vote in on Election day (but may only vote in a single party's primary). In some states with this type, only voters registered with a party may participate, while in others, voters registered as independent may also participate. In another type, the ballot shows all of the offices and all of the candidates, and voters can select one candidate for each office regardless of party, but only one candidate per office. Independent voters do participate in this type.

What are Judicial Elections?

Judges in Pennsylvania have been elected since the mid-19th Century. These elections typically occur in odd-numbered years, when presidential and congressional races are not on the ballot.. Should an unexpected vacancy occur, however, an election can be held in an even-numbered year.. The judicial elections determine all Pennsylvania judges, from local magistrates to the State's Supreme Court..

There are several other means of selecting judges: appointment by the governor with confirmation by the legislature, appointment by the governor without confirmation, and variations of the Missouri system, in which a commission of individuals screens judicial candidates and make recommendations to the governor, who then nominates one candidate for each vacancy.. Usually the legislature has the opportunity to confirm the governor's choice.

All district or county judges are elected by voters in their respective counties; all appellate judges and justices are elected state-wide. All judges and justices serve 10-year terms. At the conclusion of their terms, they may seek to remain on the bench by standing for election in a retention election.
